As part of my research work ,I focus on one of the vital topic is that, The role of synonyms in English language. This is clear that, synonyms are much more significant thing not only in English language, but also in other languages. Synonyms are functional thing in English language. In the first instance, this is assisting to beginners for improving all of the skills. Such as, speaking, writing, reading and listening. Moreover , It is preserve reputation and make the student's speech attractive. That is to say, some words are commonly used in formal contexts, while others are more likely to be found in informal contexts. Similarly, some words are considered slang words and are common in spoken English, while others are standard terms [Jackson & Amvela, 2000].

On the one hand, synonyms safe starters from repetitions .I wholeheartedly believe that,If the students are not repeat the words a lot ,they can achieve some scores .From time to time, everybody knows that, certificates are so eminent and remarkable such as:

All of the English exams (B2 First, C1 Advanced, C2 Proficiency) are divided into 4 parts:

It is true that, what is connected between certificates and synonyms?

For example, the expression black and white can have different meanings. If something is black and white, it means it is clear, easy to understand. However, some people see everything in black and white, which means that they judge everything they see as either good or bad. Some people have to see something in black and white to know that it is true; this black and white talks about seeing something printed, as in a newspaper. If something is printed in a newspaper, it must be true, right? Many English idioms contain the names of colors. Nonetheless, a lot of these statements discuss colors in somewhat diverse ways. For instance, there are various interpretations of the phrase "black and white." Something is plain and simple to understand if it is black and white. Those may enjoy blues music, which typically conveys tales of sorrow. But blue isn't inherently depressing. Green is another color that can have very different meanings. In the past, being green was almost always something negative. For example, if you ride on a boat and feel seasick,? your face may look green. If someone has something nice that you really want, like a new car or an expensive watch, you may also be green with envy. Or if you are starting a new job, your boss may say you are green, which means that you don't have any experience. Now, however, green is usually good. Being green more often means doing good things for the environment .People who are good at growing plants have a green thumb. Many companies are going green, which means they are recycling more or are trying to use less energy. In fact, some companies are moving to new, green buildings, which may use solar power or grow plants on their roofs. So if someone asks you how green you are, it probably means they want to know if you do good things for the environment. Learning new expressions with colors can be fun, but it's not always easy.
