Abstract: Globalization is a phenomenon and a process that is aspiring to transform the entire world into a single political and economic system through the rapid movement of goods and people across the planet in the most rapid speed ever witnessed in the history of mankind. This article is a theoretical and conceptual research which investigates the role of modern islamic doctrine in the process of globalization.

Key words: Globalization and Islam, The First President of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the Qur'an, the Sunnah, the Council of Foreign Ministers of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, Shavkat Mirziyoyev.

The process of globalization is a broad concept that covers several countries, regions, and the whole world and has a direct impact on the way of life of mankind. Globalization was originally reflected in the economic development of states, but now it covers all processes, from politics, ethics, national and spiritual life, to the daily life of people. Also, this process is becoming more and more deeply ingrained in our lives today. The First President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Islam Karimov said: "Today, the development and prosperity of any country is closely linked not only with its near and far neighbors but also with other regions and territories around the world. The exclusion of any country from this process will not lead to positive results.”

In the process of globalization, another factor that has managed to show the spiritual maturity of man is a religious belief. At a time when the world is rapidly adapting, it is clear that Islamic teachings have a special place. Because today in the world there is a fierce struggle and competition, the conflict of interests is growing. The processes of globalization are bringing unprecedented new challenges to humanity, as well as unexpected challenges. Threats and dangers to national identity and spiritual values are growing. The role of the Qur'an and the Sunnah, which are the main sources of Islam, is invaluable in building immunity against the ideology that negatively affects the spirituality of our society. The sacred sources of Islam emphasize the basic aspects of human moral education, which undoubtedly inspires people to enlightenment, good character, and good intentions. As noted by President Shavkat Mirziyayev, “Today, when the world is changing rapidly and various new threats and dangers are emerging that threaten the stability and sustainable development of peoples, spirituality and enlightenment, moral education, youth education, perfection it is more important than ever to pay attention to the aspiration to achieve. It is education and enlightenment that are key to human well-being, encouraging people to do good, and encouraging generous patience. That is what our holy religion, Islam, teaches us. Such an approach is a requirement of the time!”³⁴

Islamic teachings also address the issue of knowledge, which is one of the most pressing issues in the current process of globalization. It encourages people to understand themselves through science, to take their place in life, and to look deeper into the world. Our forefathers also developed the morality, education, and, knowledge described in the teachings of Islam. They have a deep understanding of the inner and outer meanings of the phrase “Read!” in the first verse of the Qur’an, and the second verse, “O you who are covered!” Arise and warn, warn the whole nation and state against all kinds of intrigue and bloodshed, and realize that it is not ignorant and ignorant to set out on the right path.

At the opening ceremony of the forty-third session of the Council of Foreign Ministers of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, the theme “Education and enlightenment - the path to peace and prosperity” coincides with the famous hadith “Seek knowledge from the cradle to the grave.” This topic was proposed by the First President of Uzbekistan Islam Karimov, – said Shavkat Mirziyoyev. The true purpose and essence of Islamic teaching are to encourage society and beings to acquire knowledge, do good deeds, and show compassion to one another.

In short, at a time when globalization is on the rise, Islamic teachings are an integral part of our lives today, encouraging people to think spiritually. Islam is a religion of enlightenment that serves to define nature, society, man and his consciousness, and the purpose of life. Especially in today's era of globalization, applying the ideas of Islamic teachings to our lives can help us easily overcome the challenges we face in our lives.
