Abstract: This article suggest several types of beneficial ways in support of preparing children to master foreign languages and improve their language skills

Key words: creativity, the role of media, language expectations, natural atmosphere, imitating, games.

In the last decades, learning a second language has been being significantly vital and popular, since it can influence the human beings lives. Consequently there are a myriad of difficulties which are encountered by adolescent language learners. Meanwhile, it is assumed that younger people are able to learn new language easily, as their brains are like sponges that can suck up fast any new action or information. Therefore, there are some beneficial approaches to make ready young individuals to master foreign languages.

Creating learning station for student exploration. As children are very energetic and get bored easily from similarity, parents or educators should use their creativity in order to ornament their home or classroom with interesting and proper things, and write down the words and phrases of each equipments. In effective classroom there will be a lot of movement repetition and lessons, look like a game, kids will use their body and senses to learn the foreign words. Additionally, they can use real painting and the wall in order to show what they learn. It is not only about what they stick or draw on the wall, but also what they do. To illustrate if they learn the shapes, colors and animals through the real practices with toys, papers and pictures.

Let them take an effective break. Children more often feel tired, since they are young minds, therefore it is time to sing a song, watch cartoons and movies in a target language. Young learners really love those kind of activities. Thus, media is worked for their benefit, they can sing songs which are interacted with foreign languages and specialized to their age, for instance “Rain rain go away...”, “Twinkle twinkle little star”, “Little pigs”, “Months of the Year”, and “This is my head”. All these children’s songs have already become lovely and useful for kids. This is because they have great opportunity to master how to pronounce correctly and some basic things like part of the body, colors, weather, months and others with fun in while they are taking a rest. As for cartoons, young aged children learn via listening and imitating. So, the majority of children can simply learn the second by watching cartoons in that language. Moreover, there are an abundant of special TV shows, programs that are designed for teaching foreign languages. And also, they tend to learn by heart some short sentences and phrases, and even can easily use them in a proper condition because of their adaptation ability at young age.

Improve the courage of children already have. Most children are so shy and afraid of making mistakes. As a result, they cannot utilize what they have acquired. In that case, teachers should be willingly to ask every child than they think they can do. Most likely, they will rise to the challenge. And the classroom should be a safe for taking risks. Furthermore, showing young students it is fine to laugh at themselves and be willing to laugh at teachers too is very good approach to kill the fear and shyness. When children do not feel shame for making mistakes, and if they can laugh at themselves, they will not be scared failures and taking risks, and these are considered as the most fundamental units of acquiring new languages.

Conclusion: In teaching foreign languages to young children, creating independent atmosphere and spending free time with special medias enable children to learn more effectively. Empowering their bravery can lead them to practice without any difficulties what they learn.
